Girl Died Instantly In Running-Board Case

Struck By Tree, Girl Was Knocked Off Car, Witnesses State

DECISION IS RESERVED

Magistrate Ross Hossack reserved his decision for a week after hearing the evidence in a preliminary inquiry into a manslaughter charge against Royce Johnson, Toronto, in county police court, Newmarket, on Tuesday afternoon.

The charge arose out of the death of Gertrude Nellie Covey, Richmond Hill girl, north of Lake Wilcox, Aug. 8.

"Death was instantaneous," said Dr. John Wilson, Toronto, who performed an autopsy. He said he had known the girl before and that she was identified by her brother in his presence.

"It is supposed that her injuries were received by being struck by a tree while riding on the outside of a car," said N. L. Mathews, K.C., for the crown.

Newmarket Photographer Is Invited To Exhibit In P.E.I.

While vacationing in Prince Edward Island early this month, H. B. Green, Newmarket, amateur photographer, was honored with an exhibition of 80 of his photographs at the Harris Memorial Gallery, Charlottetown. The exhibition has since been moved to other centres in P.E.I.

MEETING POSTPONED

The September meeting of the Velma Widdfield mission circle is postponed until Friday evening, Oct. 1.

Treatment Is To Start Soon

"During the infantile paralysis scare, the condition of the town water has not received the usual amount of public attention, and to tell the truth, the water has been better at times in some parts of the town," Dr. J. H. Wesley, M.O.H., stated this week.

"However, a letter from the department of health states they have arrangements about completed to commence the treatment test of the water in the town mains with sodium silicate, in order to overcome the corrosive action of the water from the Strigley St. well on the lining of the pipes and mains.

"On August 12, a representative from the provincial department took samples of the town water from five different parts of the town, including a sample of the filtered water from the Robert Strigley well, and, strange to tell, the sample taken at the well contained less iron than that taken from any of the other sources, and no two samples were alike.

"This proves the water undergoes different changes on its way from the sources at the well to the taps in the houses and other places of distribution, and also does not prove that all the excess iron comes through the water from the source of supply and not from vegetable decomposition in the mains."

Sept. 28 - 29—Monster Fashion Show will be held in town of Newmarket, sponsored by R.S.A. Bugle Band.

Quaker Movements Start And Thrive As Guns Yawn

Quaker Movement Has Spread To Countries
On Continent

In face of great difficulties and discouragements, and often at great sacrifice in countries where military service is compulsory, Quaker organizations have sprung up in half a dozen European countries since the war, Paul Sturge, secretary of the Friends Service Council for London yearly meeting, told a group of local Friends at the Friends church here on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Sturge, like Rev. Burton Hill, local pastor, who was chairman, has been attending the World Conference of Friends in Philadelphia from Sept. 1 to 8. Another delegate to the conference will speak next Monday evening.

"Before the war the Society of Friends was almost entirely Anglo-Saxon," said Mr. Sturge. "A whole group of people came to what took place during the war. After the war I was one of two English members of a Friends mission to Germany. The American Friends bore much the larger share of the burden. At one time we were feeding a million children a day. Conditions in Germany in some places were pitiable.

"Gradually there grew up a group of people in Germany who became very closely associated with the Friends. They joined London Yearly Meeting, and in 1920 about 150 Friends in Berlin and Frankfurt formed a German yearly meeting. They have increased to about 300 today, with about 3,000 adherents who haven't actually joined.

"The way they have had to face problems of persecution and such like has given them a spiritual insight which has been of great value to us at the world conference.

"A body of Swiss who found compulsory military service impossible were very happy to find that there was a religious body devoted to peace. They and other groups in Switzerland have become Friends and are likely to form their own yearly meeting next year.

"There is another little group in Sweden. They face difficulties in European states where it is necessary to register your religion. The Swedish church was very friendly to them and the archbishop conferred with them to see if it wasn't possible for them to find a place within the Swedish church. It was with a good deal of sorrow that they decided to break away and have their own group, because the Swedish church is very broad in finding room for differing groups within itself.

TONSIL CASES START YEAR'S WORK OF CLUB

REPORT ON CONVENTION

Four tonsil operations have been arranged by the Lions club recently, it was reported at the first fall meeting on Monday evening. The new president, W. L. Bosworth, was in the chair.

A letter of thanks for an electric fan presented to an invalid was received.

Treasurer Frank Courtney reported that there was $150 in club funds and $316 in the children's fund, and that in addition the recent carnival had netted $650.

Fred A. Lundy, former president, reported on his trip to the International Lions convention at Chicago as a representative of the club.

"I consider having been elected president of this club one of the most important things of my life," said Mr. Lundy. "I have filled, as you know, various important offices in the town, but this seems to me the crowning achievement."

"The thing that impressed me most at the convention was the great measure of loyalty to the various flags at the convention. The parade of flags will remain in memory indelibly. And the service of memory would make any of us proud that we were members of an organization that could stage a demonstration like that."

Mr. Lundy returned to the club part of his expense money.

Frank Courtney, the second delegate, told of a caravan of 47 cars from Florida, each representing a club, which travelled 1,500 miles without a mishap. Mr. Courtney returned more than half of his expense money, explaining that he had had no transportation to pay.

"There were 12,000 regular delegates from seven countries," said H. E. Lambert, former district governor. Mr. Lambert told of attending a dinner as the guest of the California clubs. His wife and other ladies were presented with a gardenia cut and flown from California that day.

The scholarship, which was open to all students in the province of Ontario, with the exception of those attending schools in Toronto, consisted of $125 cash and free tuition for four years. Miss Fairbairn is going to attend University College and has registered in the Latin and French course.

In addition, Miss Fairbairn has also tried for the Carter scholarship. May Coupland of Newmarket also wrote this examination but the results will not be announced for some time.

Guests during the weekend at "Sharon-Noon" included Lady Windle, Mr. and Mrs. C. Elmsley, King, Mr. and Mrs. C. Espion, Peterborough, Miss E. Kendle, Miss M. Kendle, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Stoddart, Newmarket.

"There were so many people in Germany who could not allow their children to go to the schools where they were taught nationalism and downright anti-Christianity. So a school was started in Holland. It was hoped that after the crisis in Germany is over that this may develop into an international Friends school.

"There is also a group in Denmark. "We had all these groups meeting together in Philadelphia. We had also the Japanese Friends.

"English and American Friends are giving relief in Spain, and we are practically the only group ready to give relief without asking any question as to political affiliation."

Sharon And Mounties Fight It Out Tonight

esting Contests For

PLAY AT MOUNT ALBERT

They fight it out tonight. Sharon and Mount Albert. They each have a game and the final game is to be played tonight at Mount Albert at 6 p.m. D.S.T. Sharon waded into Mount Albert last Thursday night in the shadows of Sharon temple and took a nice victory.

Mount Albert replied in kind on Tuesday night at Mount Albert.

A big crowd saw the Sharon game last Thursday, ending 13-4 for the Mounties. There was nothing spectacular unless it was the systematic way Ivan Eves on the Sharon bag held down the Mount Albert lads. Eves was superb.

Bill Newfield was the star batter with five hits out of five times to bat and two home runs to his credit. Jack Smith, another Sharonite, was not far behind with four hits out of five tries and one home run. Art Selby, erstwhile Newmarket star, didn't do so badly with three hits out of four times to bat.

Sharon got four in the second, four in the third, one in the fourth, three in the sixth, and one in the last half of the eighth. Mount Albert brought a man home in the third and another in the fourth, and two in the sixth. The game went nine innings.

Watt of Mount Albert, on third base, and Harry Draper, behind the bat, did stellar work but the odds were against the Mounties.

Sharon started well on Tuesday night, but ended on the sad end of a 13-0 score. The Sharon boys did not seem to get warmed up properly, and Ivan Eves did not hit his usual stride. He was relieved by Lonnie Ganton in the fifth after allowing a couple of home runs, but Ganton couldn't stop those Mounties.

Sharon was the first to score, with three runs in the third, Mount Albert coming back strong with five in the same inning. Mount Albert added another in the fourth and no less than five in the fifth.

Sharon got to work again in the sixth with three runs. Mount Albert got two. Sharon replied with two in the seventh and two in the eighth. And then darkness closed down.

Draper had a home run in the fifth for Mount Albert. Watt had several runs to his credit. For Sharon Selby had three hits, including a home run, and Newfield had five hits out of five times at bat.

The September meeting of the Evangeline Auxiliary was held on Tuesday evening in the junior room with the president, Mrs. Ed. Hickson, in charge. Miss Bertha Neilly read the devotional leaflet, after which Mrs. Alex MacKay gave a paper on "Why medical missions in Canada?"

A vital challenging message was delivered by Mrs. Visser, a missionary on furlough from the Belgian Congo. Mrs. Visser, while in town, is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Alex. Eves. Various native curios such as a death cloth, combs made from the palm tree, and a wife training thing were used by the speaker to illustrate her talk.

The missionary in Africa, she stated, preaches the gospel to the natives through their customs. Very notable is the improvement in their manner of living. They are Christianized. The president expressed the thanks of the society to the speaker.

Mrs. J. A. Maitland announced that the fall conference will be held in Sutton on the afternoon of September 30. The social hostesses for the evening were Miss Neilly and Miss Lloyd while Mrs. Florence Cole, Mrs. Frank Brammer and Mrs. Earl Peters formed the refreshment committee.

FALL WEDDING IS PICTURESQUE

Jean Chantler Is Bride Of
Dr. Allister Lachner. Will Go To Europe

A wedding of great interest to Newmarket people took place yesterday in Trinity United Church when Jean Thomson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. Chantler of Newmarket, became the bride of Dr. Allister Lachner, son of Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Lachner of Kitchener. Rev. A. E. Marshall, a former pastor of Trinity United Church, performed the ceremony, in a setting of coral gladioli, palms and ferns. Mr. Illyd Harris of Newmarket was at the organ.

The bride was lovely in a beautiful gown of ivory satin made on directoire lines, with neck, sleeves and train edged with fine pleating of the same material. Her long veil of tulle was caught to her head with a halo cap edged with seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of white roses, bouvardia, and lily of the valley. The bride's attendants, Miss Florence Chantler, sister of the bride, and Mrs. D. O. Munro, were gowned in identical frocks of coral velvet, with poke bonnets of the same material and carried bouquets of coral gladioli and pale blue delphinium.

The best man was Mr. James Lochead of Kitchener, and the ushers were Mr. Law Chantler of Sudbury, Mr. MacRae Ferguson of Waterloo, Mr. George Edwards of Galt and Mr. Ross Wilson of Toronto. During the signing of the register, Miss Jean Ferguson of Kitchener sang a beautiful solo.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride on Park avenue. Mrs. Chantler received in a gown of blue velvet with matching hat and kolinsky cape, while the groom's mother wore a frock of pale blue crepe with black hat and accessories.

Paralysis Case Puts Off School Re-opening

OTHER ILLNESS ABATES

"Last week the town papers announced that all the schools would re-open the following Monday, but another case of poliomyelitis was discovered on Saturday at the home of Robert Patterson on Eagle St., and at a largely representative meeting of the trustees and teachers of the different schools held at the residence of the M.O.H., it was unanimously decided to leave the schools closed for another week," Dr. J. H. Wesley, M.O.H., stated this week.

"As the little Patterson girl has had no contact with the outside since the commencement of her present sickness, and has not been at school, and as the other family where there was a case of the disease is released from quarantine, it would look as though we may have no further outbreak. There are no other suspicious cases at the present time; in fact, the outbreak of sickness which resembles an influenza is abating. So it is here definitely announced that the schools will be opened on Monday next, Sept. 20."

Say G.C.F. Growth Has Been Remarkably Fast For Its Four Years

Fifty people or less heard the C.C.F. "farmer-labor" party, fire its opening gun in Newmarket town hall on Saturday evening.

"Four years ago this meeting would not have been possible," said E. J. Garland, M.P., for an Alberta riding. "I promise you that four years from today this room will be filled for a meeting of this kind."

"The lights were out throughout the town when the meeting was about to start, and finally some candles were procured. "I have been thinking of the development of light from the candle to the electric light," said George Green of Richmond Hill, the chairman. "In political ideas we are still in the candle stage."

"The C.C.F. will eventually win North York, eventually win Ontario, eventually win Canada," said Kenneth Ross, Mount Albert merchant, the candidate. "I won't be won by beer parties and slush funds," said Mr. Ross. "The reason that people are not coming out to our meetings is in some cases fear, fear for their jobs; in other cases people are not thinking enough. Page 5, Col. 6

WHAT THE CHURCH NEEDS

We heard a clergyman declare that what the church, meaning its laymen, needed was to be filled with the spirit of God, and we did not agree wholeheartedly. We heard the clergyman say that we must get rid of selfishness and greed and lose our indifference to God, but we did not feel that that was the entire diagnosis of the church's troubles. Phrases like "the spirit of God" undoubtedly have meaning but they can become meaningless. We heard the statement that when church members became endowed with the spirit of God they would do the work of God, but we did not feel any more enlightened than if we had heard someone say that when men become good they will do good.

What We Saw

We heard the statement that men were not filled with the spirit of God and we looked about us. We did not know all these people well but we saw not one about whom we had heard ill. Nearby was a man who gives his employer far more of his time and his strength than his employer asks of him and his employer's customers extra service out of his own time and his own good nature. We saw a man who in addition to pursuing his own occupation gives a large part of his time, without monetary recompense, to conducting his municipality's business. We saw a man in poor circumstances and in poor health who gives to the church what any independent person would consider far more than that man can afford. We saw a man who gives probably more than a tenth of his income to the church and practically all of his time to the church and other community institutions. We saw a civil servant who is more obliging, just out of inherent good-heartedness, than the average business man seeking trade. We saw a man who lost his regular employment during the depression but never lost his faith and optimism and made his family's living in a humble, but uncompromising way. We saw the head of a large business which has played fair with its employees throughout the depression years. We saw women who have worked hard to look after their own families and have slaved in their spare time to raise money for the work, local and larger, of the church.

Longing For Leadership

We could not agree that the trouble with the church is with its people's failure to wait for the spirit of God to lay hold on them. We may be mistaken, as we think the clergyman mistaken, but we believe that the trouble with the church is a lack of sufficient consecrated and able leadership. We think there are too many clergymen who deliver sermons on the spirit of God, and neglect to preach on the specific everyday things that Christ preached about. We know that people are looking and longing for leadership, leadership from those who have had the educational opportunities to see social and economic problems clearly, but hear instead vague and ambiguous sermons, delivered in indignant tones, against indefinite and imaginary enemies.

Strait And Narrow

There is leadership, far-sighted and intelligent leadership, in the church today, but there is not enough of it. Many clergymen are not up to their jobs, haven't the hard-headed convictions they should have about the glaring social and economic evils about them, and haven't the courage of the convictions they do have. Our thought is, and it may be a wild and impractical thought, that it should be a lot more difficult to get into the ministry. We do not think that everyone who decides upon the ministry as a profession should be welcomed with open arms. Our thought is that the ministry should accept only those who have outstanding scholastic records or who have been successful in other callings. Our thought is that every minister should have such ability that he could leave the ministry at any time and make a better living elsewhere. Our thought is that every man in the ministry should be making an economic sacrifice and that nobody should be in the ministry who could not command a better living outside it. We do not wish clergymen more poorly paid; rather we would have them better paid; but we would like to see the general standard of ability so raised that the salary would mean an economic sacrifice.

Eager For Leadership

With our pulpits filled with men of outstanding ability, some with experience in other callings, all consecrated by sacrifice, we would hear men speak with authority and with courage. We would not see there men who don't think deeply or men afraid to say the things they think for fear of offending important contributors to the church. We would see the pews filled with people eager for leadership, eager for a strong voice to point the way, eager for "hope that sends a shining ray far down the future's broadening way."

NOT UNANIMOUS

The Era's article last week on Mr. Hepburn and the liquor question drew comments from both those who agreed and at least one who disagreed with what was said. The one who disagreed, it developed in conversation, really didn't disagree with the statements we made but rather contended that we were departing from independence in publishing such an article. For instance, our friend was displeased with the statement that Mr. Hepburn's proposed new commission, to take liquor out of politics, was unconstructive. We put to him our question: "For instance, would he (Mr. Hepburn) permit himself to do, to close the beverage rooms to women, or to do anything else that interfered with government revenues?" Mr. Hepburn said that he was going to close the beverage rooms to women, but found that it would hurt the tourist trade too much.

Democrats Are Difficult

Our friend said why no, you couldn't close the beverage rooms to women. Our friend believed that everyone has a right to have a drink when and as he or she wanted it. We said that there was no more reason to close beverage rooms to women, in our opinion, than to men, and we believe that everyone has the right to have a drink, subject to this, that in a democratic country a majority of the people in the country as a whole or in any section or municipality has or should have the right to say that liquor is not to be sold (or even consumed, though we think that impractical) in that country, province or municipality, as the case may be. You are always up against that, in a democratic country. A majority of your neighbors can always pass a law against you kissing your wife in public, but it does not follow that they can enforce it.

Police Criticized

So we repeated to our friend that we thought Mr. Hepburn should spend some money on temperance education. The first thing our friend would do, he said, before he spent any money on education, would be to have the police enforce the laws and close up the liquor dives. Look at the York county police, he said. We agree that there are some of them who are not fitted to be enforcing liquor laws. Our friend thought that we should devote our editorials to the police, and leave Mr. Hepburn alone. But we don't agree.

Leadership Needed

We said that it was up to Mr. Hepburn to show that he wanted the liquor laws enforced. We said that Mr. Hepburn had made many an honest policeman give up in disgust when he abolished the beer permit. As the situation stands, a policeman may go to a man's house and find any quantity of beer and he can do nothing about it. In the old days, the policeman could ask for the man's beer permit. If the beer were not on the permit, the man was in trouble. If there was too much beer on the permit, the policeman could write to the Liquor Control Board and probably have the man's permit cancelled. Cancellation of the permit cleared the way for a conviction if the policeman visited the home again and again found beer.

Hogg's Hollow Beverage Room

Our friend said that Mr. Hepburn was receiving no help from the police in enforcing the liquor laws. We contended that Mr. Hepburn would not find the police very active in enforcing the liquor laws until he showed himself anxious to reduce the consumption of liquor and to have the laws enforced. We pointed to the beverage room at Hogg's Hollow on Yonge St., given a license there by the so-called Liquor Control board in spite of the protests of residents of the district that all patrons must come and go by motor-car. Yet, we told our friend, Mr. Hepburn through the department of highways, says: If you drive, don't drink; if you drink, don't drive. Our friend replied that he did not approve of the way the beverage licenses were being granted. He thought some places should have them that haven't and that others that have shouldn't.

Who Makes Issues?

Our friend said that liquor was not an issue in this campaign, that there were other things of more importance, financial questions and labor issues. Now that is probably true. Mr. Hepburn has the color and personality and platform ability to name his own issues pretty much as he pleases. He is, as advertised, "Ontario's man of action," and naturally he chooses as issues the matters which he believes he has handled best. He would be very foolish to make an issue of his administration of the liquor act.

Sure, We're Independent

More than that, we are not departing in our opinion, from independence in criticizing Mr. Hepburn in this or any other matter. We do not ask people to vote against or for him. Our guess is that the people of this riding and of the province generally, will vote for him, but that is no reason why we should not try, in our small way, to influence government policy. More than that, we do not believe that it is the business of good newspapers to give blind support to any government either Liberal or Conservative. There are plenty of straight party people who believe that everything that their party leaders do is all right and that everything that the opposing party leaders do is all wrong without community weeklies joining them. Governments need criticism and plenty of it, and to urge on Mr. Hepburn the spending of money for temperance education comes well within the bounds of fair criticism. There were Conservative governments and we criticized them. There are Liberal governments and we criticize them. There will be Conservative governments again and we shall criticize them. We can't help having opinions and we believe that it is our business as a newspaper to express them. Anyone who disagrees with our editorial page opinions is invited to make use of our news columns, with signed letters or interviews, to tell us wherein we are wrong. Our own opinions we keep on this inside page; other people's opinions we try to give front-page prominence.

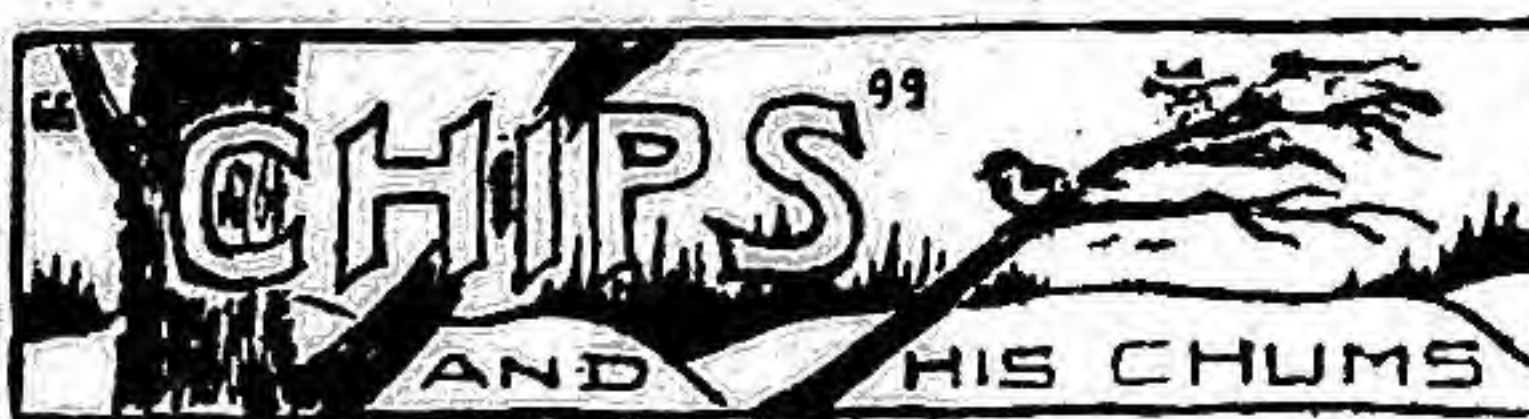

And Support Too

Let us add that governments need support too, when they are doing courageous things which need to be done, and we have supported Mr. Hepburn generously on actions which we believed came in this category.

About Mr. Rowe

We find it a little difficult to criticize someone who has not been in office, but here is what the Ontario Temperance Federation has to say about Mr. Rowe's party: "The Conservative party introduced government control under the plea that there would be no private profit, no public drinking and no treating system. Having re-established the legal sale of liquor, that party was induced, apart from any mandate from the people, to forget the above-named fundamental conditions of government control. It accordingly introduced a system intended to bring back private profit with its stimulus to sales, public social drinking with its increased temptation, and the treating system with its inducement to excess."

"The beer rooms of today are beyond question in many respects worse than the bar rooms of yesterday. Their introduction constituted not only a departure from Government control, but a wholly retrograde step. Their existence is an injury to trade, a detriment to homes, a menace to youth and a cause of increased slaughter on our highways."

Some Of The Mothers Get A Scare

BY RUTH DINGMAN HEBB

"What glorious weather this is," chirped Cora Chickadee cheerily to her friends, who were eating happily in some trees on the edge of the woods. "It makes me feel like doing something adventurous."

"Well, it's certainly a relief to feel that our young ones are pretty well able to look after themselves now and that we don't have to keep an eye on them every minute," said Mrs. Pecker, the Downy Woodpecker. "Responsibility is such an aging thing, always think that freedom from it brings back the spirit of youth."

"Yes, we parents are certainly much freer in the autumn," put in Hattie Nuthatch between vigorous pecks at the tree trunk, which she was calmly navigating head downwards. "And yet I do hate to see them become too independent. There was a tragedy in our family this year. One of the boys has decided to leave our crowd of birds this winter and go a little farther south with some of his boy friend's folks, and Chubby and I didn't feel that we had any right to stop him from going if he really wants to. We may never see him again." She vigorously flaked off a bit of loose bark and pried into the cracks in the tree trunk viciously to hide her feelings.

"Never mind, Hattie," consoled Mrs. Pecker. "Don't look so sad. It doesn't suit that little turned-up bill of yours. The boy will live a very happy and useful life away from you."

"My bill is not turned up," contradicted Hattie loudly. "Well, it certainly is tilted slightly upward and gives you a sort of turned-up effect," maintained the Woodpecker lady. "It hasn't got a hickel-shaped point like my bill has, but then, of course, you Nuthatches don't do much deep boring into trees like we do and so you don't need it."

"For that matter my toes are different, too," said Hattie, restored to good humor. "I've got three in front and one behind, while you have two in front and two behind. And I think I make pretty good use of mine, too. I know all you girls wish you could go up a tree trunk and down a tree trunk and backwards and forwards like."

"Look out," screamed Cora to the others and then she froze as immovable as a statue, as a dark shadow flew above their heads close to the treetops in which the chums were feeding.

Everyone was absolutely silent and filled with dread, while the big bird flew over them.

"He didn't see us," breathed Mrs. Pecker finally with a long-drawn breath of relief. "It was Sharp-shin, the Hawk, and he's as cruel a Hawk as there is, even though he is the smallest of the lot, except the Sparrow Hawk. I knew him by his square tail and small size, otherwise I would have taken him for a Cooper's Hawk."

"That Accipiter family are all fiends," shivered Cora. "The big Goshawk is brutal too, and the largest of the trio."

"I think that Sharp-shin must have caught a bird just after he passed us," said Hattie, "because I saw him dart suddenly toward a tree, the way he does. They always take their victims by surprise attack and don't pursue them for any distance like the Hawks of some of the other families do. They are terribly swift and quick-moving. How I hate them."

"That way they have of flying low over the trees or along the edge of the woods is a terrible menace to us woodland birds."

added Cora, when she was sufficiently calm to speak. "If they would soar away up in the sky where we could see them, like some of the others do, it wouldn't be quite so bad."

"We might just as well be prepared for scares like this from now on, for some time," Mrs. Pecker warned them. "There'll be lots of Hawks flying southwards now. It's a rather dangerous season."

"I know the children weren't caught by that Hawk because they are all right here," said Cora, "but I don't know about Chips. He seems to have flown somewhere. I think I'll see if I can find him. Oh, dear, I hope he's all right."

"Don't be foolish Cora," said Mrs. Pecker. "That man can take care of himself. You'd think he was a baby the way you worry about him."

"I don't feel quite so adventurous as I did," mourned Cora. "That was enough of an adventure for me for a while. And I think I'll go on taking the responsibilities of a mother on my shoulders for a little while longer, too."

THIS GHASTLY TRAGEDY COULD HAVE BEEN AVOIDED!

If it hadn't been for a foolhardy, reckless, criminal driver this accident would have been avoided. As it is, one victim was taken direct to an undertaker's parlours and two to a hospital. The driver who caused it is hopelessly crippled for the rest of his life.

YOU'LL BE IN TROUBLE IF YOU DISREGARD THE LAWS

If you are a reckless driver travelling the Ontario highways, cutting in, passing on curves and hills, endangering the lives of others, you will find yourself in serious trouble. The appalling death toll must stop—and you who are responsible for it will be put off the road! A thousand eyes are watching you; so be forewarned!

Ontario Motorists Will Co-operate

When you see a motorist driving in a manner dangerous to the public, take his number, make a careful note of the actual time and place, and when you reach your destination write to the Motor Vehicles Branch, Department of Highways, Toronto, giving full details. We do not invite reports of minor infringements of the traffic laws; you are requested to use sound judgment. We will deal adequately with offenders.

POLICE COURT

SENTENCED TO TWO MONTHS

For speeding on Yonge St. Fred S. Richards was fined $5 and costs in Newmarket police court on Tuesday. Provincial Constable A. O. Ferguson laid the charge. Henry Linson was similarly fined for speeding on Yonge St.

The police court session started at 10 a.m. and lasted until 5:30 p.m.

Wm. Graham, Pearson's Coroner, on a charge of failing to produce his driver's license was fined $5 and costs, and on a charge of defective brakes was fined $10 and costs. The alternative was ten days in jail. Constable James Sloss testified that Graham's brakes had no effect and that he used low gear to stop his car.

Jack Archibald, King township farmer, was fined $100 and costs on three months for having liquor in an unlawful place. Beer found in a cool storage well in his barn and in his house was confiscated and his house was declared a public place, making it illegal to have alcoholic liquor there.

A minimum fine of $10 and costs for reckless driving was imposed on Jack Arlitt, Newmarket, following a collision in Whitchurch township. Constable Robert Windsor laid the charge and the minimum fine was imposed on recommendation of the Whitchurch police who said that Arlitt was not much to blame.

For not having a dog license the following Newmarket citizens were fined as follows: Harry Granger, $5; Mrs. Geo. Brown, $5; Alfred Dennis, $2; Alex. Lucker, $2.

A similar charge against Arthur Pegg was dismissed.

"I have no dog," said Mr. Pegg. "Mr. Curtis came to the house and said we would have to pay for our dog or get rid of it. I got rid of it."

Mr. Curtis maintained that he had made the call on July 29 and that Mr. Pegg had not got rid of the dog for some time subsequently. Mr. Pegg said that he had got rid of the dog, a female, about the middle of July.

On a charge of reckless driving Max Jacobson, driving a truck for a Toronto firm, was fined $15 and costs. The accused man said that a grasshopper got into his eyes at the time of the accident, which occurred south of Keswick.

"I never saw a plainer case made out for reckless driving, but in the view of the young man's circumstances I will impose a light fine," said Magistrate Ross Hosack.

Constable Bernard Rye testified that after the accident the truck was pointing north on the left side of the road.

"The truck driver said that a butterfly had been in his eye at the time of the impact," Constable Rye said. "The other car was on the same side of the road, pointing south."

"Is there any curve at this point?" asked the magistrate.

"Yes, to the east," Constable Rye said. The constable exhibited a photograph taken by Wallace

Donnell, Keswick.

"He was travelling on my side of the road," said J. J. Sheppard, the other party in the accident. "I got off the road. He was coming at me."

"How far did you get off?" asked N. L. Mathews, K.C., crown prosecutor.

"Three feet," said Mr. Sheppard. "There was a culvert and I couldn't get right off."

Mr. Sheppard said that he had three ribs broken. He had been travelling 35 miles an hour when he first saw the truck, and ten miles per hour at the time of the collision, he said.

"What speed was the truck travelling?"

"I have no idea. By the impact, considerable."

"What is the damage to your car?"

"It will be around $400."

"How fast were you driving when approaching the culvert?" Mr. Mathews asked Jacobson.

"Twenty-five to 30 miles an hour," he replied.

"Your broken wheel would stop you. How did you skid so far, 140 feet?"

John Tanti, 16, a passenger in the truck, verified Jacobson's statement as to the speed.

"He was going 25 to 30 miles an hour, when an insect struck his face, and he lost control of the truck."

"He was on the wrong side of the road for 120 feet, and then his truck travelled 140 feet after the impact," commented the magistrate. "The only thing to do when an insect gets in your face, is to stop the car."

Evidence was given that Jacobson was a married man with children, that he was earning $13 a week, and that his employment was for the summer only.

Convicted on a charge of keeping liquor for sale, Thomas Cole, seventh concession, East Gwillimbury, two miles south of Holt, was sent to jail for two months.

Refractive George Stuart testified that he had sent Constable Anthony Crouch into the house with a marked bill, and afterward entered with other officers, to find Crouch and another man drinking at a table and the marked bill in the possession of the accused man.

"It was just an accident," said Mr. Cole. "I was a little run down and I thought a little home-brew would do me no harm. I am not a bootlegger. I am not in the habit of selling it."

The home-brew, a couple of dozen bottles, was in court and was ordered confiscated. Mr. Cole's home was declared a public place.

Fred J. Coultice, Musselman's Lake, was convicted on a charge of running a gaming-house. He was remanded a week for sentence.

A slot machine, which was seized by Detective George Stuart and Constable W. J. Meyers, was confiscated.

"There was no skill in it, purely a matter of luck," said Detective Stuart. "I exchanged some slugs for two chocolate bars."

"I refused to give you anything for 10 or 15 minutes," said Mr. Coultice. "I told you that the machine was for amusement only. You said there were no mints in the machine, and finally I gave you a couple of chocolate bars."

SUTTON

Storm-Fanned Flames Wreck Three Main Street Buildings

A fire of unknown origin, one of the most severe in years, which is believed to have broken out in a frame building, on the main street of Sutton, occupied by George Thompson and family, quickly spread to the house and garage on either side of it, all three of which fell prey to the flames before the combined fire-fighting forces of Newmarket and Sutton could bring the blaze under control.

The blaze, which started about one o'clock on Sunday morning, spread very rapidly when fanned by the exceptionally high winds, carrying live coals for many blocks, menacing stores and residences throughout the village. The heat given off was so intense that although metal signs were tacked in front of the windows of Morton's grocery store directly across the street they failed to save the plate-glass windows. The paint was also blistered on Burch's store quite some distance away.

The structures, all frame, included a dwelling-house occupied by Geo. Thompson, a similar structure owned by Chesley Scott, a mechanic, and an unoccupied garage, the property of Stanley Bruels. The machine-shop, belonging to Scott, located directly behind his house was not damaged.

The assistance of Cannington and Aurora fire brigades was requested, but as the forces of Newmarket and Sutton brought the flames under control the calls were cancelled.

Everyone, including eight children in one family and three in another, managed to escape to safety shortly after the alarm was given, although there was nothing salvaged except a table and a stove. Two hose lines and chemicals were used, but efforts were chiefly directed toward preventing the spread of the fire.

Workmen began on Monday to remove the ruins, the telephone repair-men being busy replacing the damaged wires and cables. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

TWO VIEWS ON THE LIQUOR QUESTION

"THE PROFIT"—says Mr. Hepburn

"THE PEOPLE"—says Mr. Rowe

FOR three years the liquor problem has been out of control in Ontario. Mr. Hepburn, worried by the rising tide of public indignation, now tacitly admits the fact. In acknowledgment of the situation, he makes another typical last-minute, pre-election promise.

But Ontario voters are not going to be fooled again.

"Revenue First"—Hepburn

"Profit" has been Mr. Hepburn's liquor policy ever since he took office. Here are his own words as quoted in the Border Cities Star, Windsor, October 26, 1934:-

"Another thing that the Province requires is revenue. I am informed that since Mr. Odette took office, he has turned over to the Treasury $2,800,000. Let these people point out some other source of revenue. Do they want higher gasoline or corporation tax? Do they want a Provincial Income Tax? It is obvious that if we lose the revenue from the Liquor Control Board, we will have to get it elsewhere."

"People First"—Rowe

Contrast this "liquor for profit" policy with Mr. Rowe's clean-cut stand in the interest of the people.

Mr. Rowe has pledged himself: "I will return to a policy of control by a responsible board, free from political patronage. A survey will be made by the new board of all licensed hotels. I promise you that these mushroom dives which have sprung up and flourished under Hepburn will be closed—and stay closed."

The Conservative Party takes the position that public revenue should not be gained at the expense of decency.

No More Mushroom Dives

When Mr. Rowe is elected, beverage rooms will be confined to standard hotels which respect the law and give adequate service to the public.

Restaurants, taxi offices, rooming houses and hot dog stands will not, by means of a few "jerry-built" changes in construction, be able to qualify as standard hotels.

Beverage rooms will not be forced on communities where they are not wanted. Nor will such places flourish in the shadow of the churches of the Province.

Non-Political Control

Under Conservative administration, by means of a responsible non-political control body, beverage rooms will be so regulated that they will cease to be a blot on the social and moral life of Ontario.

A vote for the Conservative candidate is a vote for this policy of control.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

(By Pedagogue)

What a scare we have had, and what a commotion it has made in our community life, and especially our school life. The opening of school has been halted and our children have been ordered to stay in their own yards. All the trouble is due to our ignorance and foolishness. We live so conventionally and artificially.

If we could get people to study and think, and act upon principles of natural living a great deal of disease would be avoided. But we prefer to be governed by wish and desire rather than by "ought" or "should."

Particularly in the matter of foods do we err. How often we hear of one who "is on a diet." Why? Because nature's laws have been violated regarding proper food to nourish the body. We eat what everybody else loves much less to act on the principle that real foods are already prepared for us by nature, and that a perfect body cannot be built up out of changed or unnatural foods.

PALACE

Marxmania at its gayest will be seen in "A Day at the Races", the Marx Brothers' newest laugh extravaganza which will be presented at the Palace Theatre Friday and Saturday evenings this week. Only lunatic minds could have conceived of such devastatingly funny characterizations as are presented in "A Day at the Races".

Groucho Marx appears as Dr. Hugo Z. Hackenbush, a veterinarian who takes charge of a sanitarium inherited with all its mortgages by Maureen O'Sullivan. There he endeavors to administer to human patients with the same delicate touch that held down draught horses in the throes of heaves. You can picture how delicate his touch is when he persuades Margaret Dumont, one of his patients to swallow a pill the size of a hen's egg. Harpo plays the role of a jockey, who in the hysterically exciting race at the conclusion of the picture, spurs his horse to win by showing the animal the photograph of a man whom the horse hates. Chico is seen as a somewhat shady gentleman of the race tracks who sells both ice cream cones and tips on horses, neither being of a high quality.

It would be futile to attempt to go into the story of a Marx Brothers epic sufficient to say that the Marxes go to Maureen O'Sullivan's rescue when creditors attempt to take the sanitarium away from her, and they also aid in perfecting a tangled romance between Miss O'Sullivan and that talented young tenor, Allan Jones.

Incidentally, the latter's singing of such hits as "To-morrow is another Day," "On Blue Venetian Waters," and "A Message From The Moon," affords a most attractive counterpoint to the Marxes' antics, as does also a beautifully conceived water carnival spectacle in which a ballet plays an important part.

In Memoriam

Kay—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Joseph S. Kay, who passed peacefully away on Sept. 16, 1933, at Cannington. It's only a grave, but it still needs care.

For the one we loved lies sleeping there: Some may forget now that she's gone, But we will never forget, no matter how long.

Family.

Bishop—In loving remembrance of our dear wife and mother, who passed away, Sept. 18, 1934. It's only a grave, but it still needs care.

For our dear mother lies sleeping there: Some may forget her now she is gone, But we'll never forget her, no matter how long.

She suffered much, she murmured not. We watched her day by day. We cried and prayed that her dear life Would not be taken away.

Always remembered by her loving family.

In loving memory of my dear mother, Susannah Bishop, who passed away Sept. 18, 1934. As long as life, my heart shall hold.

Thy memory ever dear, And o'er thy grave in loving grief, I shall fall a silent tear, I watched you suffer day by day, And could not help in any way. But just stood by and saw you pass.

Into the Saviour's arms at last, If I could speak to you today deny mother, Laugh with you the same old way, Hear your voice and see you smile, Then life would really be worth-while, Sadly missed by daughter, Mrs. Oscar Watson.

Smart—In loving memory of Minnie Smart, who passed away Sept. 20, 1930. Deep in the heart lies a picture Of a loved one laid to rest, In memory's frame we shall keep it.

Because he was one of the best, Sadly missed by his sister, Florence and family.

He believed that the four-lane highway, with a boulevard down the centre, would contribute a great deal to safety.

FREE FROM SCIATICA FOR 35 YEARS

In Perfect Health at 73—Thanks to Kruschen

Thirty-five years ago this septuagenarian was helpless with sciatica. Then he heard of Kruschen. Since that day, he has enjoyed perfect health. Here is his remarkable story:

"Thirty-five years ago, I had a severe attack of sciatica, and could scarcely move for about six weeks. Then I started taking Kruschen—about half-a-teaspoonful every morning in hot water. In a few weeks, I got rid of the awful pain in my hips. I have never had to consult a doctor since, and am still in perfect health at 73 years of age, which I can only attribute to taking Kruschen Salts every morning."—T.A.

Most people grow old long before their time because they neglect one vital need of health—the need of internal cleanliness. Eventually, they start the healthy Kruschen habit. Then, probably for the first time in their lives, they start getting rid, every day, of all waste matter from the system. The result is renewed health and vigour. Ailments due to clogged systems vanish, youth returns, and life becomes really worth living.

The Common Round

By Isabel Inglis Colville

The Music Goes Round and Round

We were sitting in the car the other day at the C.N.E., consuming sandwiches, hard-boiled eggs, tomatoes, peaches, cake and coffee, when my cousin said, "I'd rather sit and listen to the U.S. Navy Band, this afternoon, than anything else I can think of."

"Well," remarked my better half in between spasms of trying to cool his tongue after a drink of too, too hot coffee, "I listening to competing bands all morning, so I'll divide up my time. It was worth it, just to hear the Brockville band play and to meet some of the boys again; it surely brought back our struggles when we organized the Citizens' Band 28 or 29 years ago."

Leaving the car, we found the heat had increased, and there were a few suspicious-looking clouds hanging low in the north. Seeing this, we decided to secure a couple of those covered chairs, and listen to the band in some degree of comfort.

We were a bit early and the seats in front of the band shell were just beginning to fill up. As I watched the crowd gather, I thought, "What a magnet is music."

Here was a Japanese youth, program in hand, making his way to a good place for both eyes and ears.

Not far away a family of negroes—father, mother and two children, settled down to spend an enjoyable hour.

Then an Englishwoman led a little Chinese girl to a seat and not far away a group of Italians chattered happily in their liquid musical tongue. Many other races not so easily recognizable, no doubt found places among those who came to drink in sweet sounds.

As I pondered on how music can fuse all races and temperaments into one great listening ear, the white-uniformed band took possession of the shell, and the concert was on.

After "O Canada" they played Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" and I do not think I ever heard it played more beautifully. Lieutenant Benter (why, oh why, did the announcer say "lootenant"—if the positions were reversed and our band were playing in the States, I'd be willing to make a small bet that their announcer would say "lootenant", without regard for our manner of pronunciation) is a conductor who seemed to be able to get the last ounce of effort from his aggregation. He was quieter in manner than some of the other conductors but he seemed to be able to work his players to a climax quite as well.

We were just happily soaring away on wings of song, when "patter, patter," came the rain on the little canopy above us. We bought newspapers and wrapped them round our knees, and it was funny to see all the uses a paper can be put to—that little shower was a boon to the newsboys—for people put them on their heads, wrapped them round their shoulders, sat on them and in fact, did everything but read them.

Well, the rain dampened papers and clothes, but it didn't dampen the enthusiasm of the listeners. One of Strauss' delicious waltzes "Southern Roses," made us forget rain, and everything but its lovely melody, and "The Lost Chord," played by the solo cornetist, was exquisite. The accompaniment by the band was a triumph of musical art.

A rather unusual adjunct to the band was a harpist. One associates that instrument with orchestras, as a rule, but it was a joy both to watch and listen to the player. At last we tore ourselves away and went in search of some of the wandering minstrels who were making music in many parts of the grounds that day.

One of the first persons we met in the morning was an elderly man looking for the place where the old time fiddlers' contest was to be held.

As we strolled around we heard two splendid choruses—one a mixed chorus—one a boys' choir. It was a marvel to me how those singing stood the heat—the rushing from place to place, often singing with that terrific sun beating down on them—but they kept their courage and more wonderful still—their pitch—and made gladsome music for all to hear.

By this time we had listened to so much music that our heads were going round and round like the music, so we decided that if we wanted to keep all our music impressions firm and clear in our minds and not have a fit of musical indigestion, we had better hie us home.

Yes, "music hath charms," and at no place that I know of can one find a greater variety of its charms than at the C.N.E.

Hepburn the Tax-Payer's Friend

PROVEN

Return Him as PREMIER

TODAY you have reason to rejoice that you voted Henry out and Hepburn in. The Hepburn administration has replaced mismanagement with good management, extravagance with economy. It has replaced the unbalanced budget with a balanced budget, changed the chronic yearly deficit to a surplus of over 9 million dollars. It has relieved the drain and strain on taxpayers' pocketbooks in many ways. In the year that ended March 31st, 1937, it reduced Ontario's gross debt by $33,098,165.39.

How You Have Profited by Hepburn's Policies

- 1 Grant, equal to one mill on the dollar, from the Province to every Municipality, has relieved Municipal taxpayers to the extent of $3,000,000.
- 2 Cancellation of the amusement tax will save patrons of the theatre, sports and other amusements $3,000,000 a year.
- 3 Ontario is granting a $5 reduction in Motor Car rates that will save motorists $2,500,000 a year.
- 4 The Province has cancelled the 20 per cent. levy formerly made upon the Counties toward the cost of King's Highways, a saving to Municipalities of over $2,700,000 to date, and a further saving this year of $2,000,000.
- 5 Township Road subsidy was increased to 50 per cent., a saving to townships of $400,000 per year.

- 6 Entire cost of Mothers' Allowances was assumed by the Province, a saving to the Municipal Taxpayers of over $2,100,000 a year.
- 7 Municipalities' share of Old Age Pensions was taken over by the Province, saving over $1,000,000 a year.
- 8 Payment of Pensions to the Blind of $300,000.
- 9 Abolition of the Students' examination fees of $170,000 is another worth-while saving that Mothers and Fathers appreciate.
- 10 Rates for Hydro-Electric Power have been reduced to users to the extent of $1,800,000.
- 11 The Hepburn Government paid relief charges out of current revenue instead of adding them to the Public Debt to be paid for by increased taxes in the future, as was the policy of the former Government.

More Sunshine Budgets

On October 6th, you will have the opportunity of showing Mitchell F. Hepburn how much you appreciate his handling of the Province's finances and the administration of its government. Mark your ballot for the Liberal Candidate in your constituency and work to elect him by a safe majority. That's the way to show Mr. Hepburn you want him to "Carry On" with his program of tax reductions. He promises another "Sunshine Budget" this year—and you know he keeps his promises. Be kind to your own pocketbook—Vote Liberal.

Carry On, Hepburn!

TREASURE HUNT

—By Barbara Webb

SYNOPSIS

Belinda Louise (Lindy Lou) Hillcrest received a letter in New York telling her of treasure hidden at Twinoaks her former home in the south. She confided the news to handsome Anton Homans, who laughed at it and forbade her going to search for the treasure. He asked Lindy Lou to marry him and the day after they became engaged left on a long sales trip. Now Lindy Lou is at Twinoaks. Arrived there, she renewed friendship with young Lee Beverly, who farms the Beeches, the adjoining plantation. Lee objected to Lindy Lou's staying alone at Twinoaks and she promised to spend the night in the village, after Lee showed her evidence of prowlers around the place. But instead of going, Lindy Lou found what she believed to be a true clue and stayed until after midnight. Hearing footsteps upstairs, she went to explore, was seized and thrust into an empty room under lock and key.

Lindy Lou sleeps all day and has just come downstairs to dinner when Lee called her on the phone.

CHAPTER 17

The Unrecognized Treasure

Lindy Lou answered the phone, knowing that every pair of ears in the house was strained to hear the conversation.

"Feeling better?" Lee asked her.

"Oh, ever so much. I've forgotten that I ever was tired."

"Good. I'll feel a lot better knowing that you're where you are tonight, instead of out at Twinoaks."

"So will I, but I'm going out there the first thing in the morning."

"I suppose so. You're a stubborn little cuss. What time are you coming out?"

"Oh, right after breakfast, I suppose."

"Want me to come for you?"

"No, I'd really like the walk. It will do me good."

"All right, but listen, Lindy Lou, I don't like your going in the house alone even in the daytime. I'll bring old Mose over to work in the yard again, and I'll go through the house with you before I leave. We'll be there about 9 o'clock. And say, Mose tells me you're going in for raising pigs."

Lindy Lou laughed. "Let him think so, Lee. Couldn't you give me one to get started with?"

"Sure—anytime you say."

"Thanks, Lee, you're awfully good to me."

"Not as good as I'd like to be—"

he paused, then very briefly as though he had said more than he meant to. "I'll see you in the morning then. Glad you're feeling better, good-by," and he hung up before Lindy Lou could say her "good-by."

The telephone call left her vaguely disturbed. She said good-night to the other boarders soon after and went up to her room. For the first time her conscience troubled her about Anton.

She got out a snapshot, the only picture she had of him, and sat down at a table to look at it. Dark and handsome and sophisticated he smiled back at her from the snapshot and Lindy Lou felt faintly the old thrill he had awakened in her. She took pen and paper and wrote him a long and fairly complete account of what she was doing, mailed it to the office with a request for forwarding, for she did not know his exact address, and went to bed feeling at peace with the world.

Lindy Lou slept soundly, but out at the Beeches Lee paced up and down the long piazza, smoking a pipe until long, long after the servants were asleep and the night was late and still around him.

It was glorious when Lindy Lou woke the next morning. Rain had cleared the air during the night and the morning sun was bright and hot. Lindy Lou sang as she dressed, chattered like a magpie all through breakfast, and even dropped a kiss on Aunt Sarah's withered cheek before she set off for Twinoaks. The old lady looked after her indulgently. "A very sweet girl," she pronounced, and thus set the seal of favor upon Lindy Lou for good and all.

Lindy Lou took the short cut, the same path she had followed on her arrival in Threeforks. She hurried along, singing under her breath. Just why she was so happy she didn't know, but happy she was, and somehow confident that the day held big things. "If I should find the treasure today," thought Lindy Lou, "and it might very well be today. It's got to be some day—well, if I should find it today I could start right back North. And I could find out where Anton is, and then go to him myself and tell him the grand news. I could get there almost as soon as my letter, and if I had the treasure he wouldn't be cross with me at all."

This dream of surprising Anton was rudely interrupted when she came in sight of Twinoaks. Lee stood on the porch, hands in his pockets surveying the scene. He waved absently at Lindy Lou and then went on gazing intently out over the Twinoaks fields.

Lindy Lou reached the edge of the porch before he spoke. "Hello, Lindy Lou. Say tell me, what do you see when you look around this place?"

Lindy Lou mounted the steps and followed his gaze. "Why—why I just see a lot of weeds, and tumble-down fences, and an old house that needs painting, and barns about fallen to pieces. Why?"

"And what do you think of when you think of Twinoaks?" he continued.

"Treasure," said Lindy Lou promptly.

Lee looked at her then, "I reckon so," he said dispiritedly, "I reckon that is all you see and all you think of."

Lindy Lou looked at him. "What do you see and think of, Lee?" she asked gently, sensing his disappointment in her answer.

Lee could have answered her in one word. He would have given anything he possessed to be able to turn and sweep her into his arms and say "you." Yes, if she weren't promised to another man Lee felt he would do just that, and give old Mose the most delighted moment of his life. But Lee knew better and he gave Lindy Lou an answer he hoped she would understand.

"Well, when I look over Twinoaks," he said, "I see past these ragged old fields to a time when they were planted and tidy, and grain was growing in them. I think I see the men and horses who used to work here, and life all busy and happy in the fields and the house. And I see the house, not as it is now, but as it once was, white and clean and full of happiness. And if I look hard enough I see Lindy Lou. I see those things not only in the past, but as they could be if—"

He paused and looked sideways at her. He could not tell from her face whether she found his words comprehensible or not. But she prompted him. "If what, Lee? Go on."

"Oh—I can't quite explain it to you Lindy Lou. Let's say I see it that way if you found your treasure and used it here instead of going back North to spend it."

Lindy Lou opened her eyes very wide. "Why I'd never think of staying here, Lee. Anton wouldn't know which end of a horse goes first, and as for this big old house—well Anton would think it ought to hold four families anyway, and probably ask where the elevator was that went up to the third floor."

"I suppose so; well, I've got to go along Lindy Lou. Sing out if you need anything."

"I thought you were going to go through the house with me."

Lindy Lou said, feeling a queer sense of disappointment that he was leaving so soon.

"Oh! I've been through. It's all right; no more signs of prowlers, and Mose will be here all day. But remember you're going back with Johnson this afternoon. I've told him I'd shoot him on sight if he left you behind again, and I think he'd better believe it."

"I thought, maybe, you'd take me back," Lindy Lou remarked.

"Nope. I'm a workin' man. You forget, woman, that I've 350 acres to manage, and haying time is here."

He went off, and at the gate turned back to call to Lindy Lou: "I've left a notice up there in the attic for your friend the burglar. Take it down if you don't want to leave it." Then he mounted the bright bay mare that had been pawing at the gate, and rode away.

Lindy Lou went straight to the attic. She had decided to give it one more thorough search before she began on the grounds again. And she was very curious about Lee's last words. She went to the window where the wind-harp had been fixed, and found that Lee had unnailed it and taken it away. In its place he had fastened a sheet of white paper, with printing in large black letters on it.

"Notice—Whoever has been prowling in this house is to keep away. The next time anything suspicious is seen here the Sheriff will be called in. Also, I have a gun and I shall not hesitate to shoot if I hear any suspicious noise. So keep out of my house and grounds."

"BELINDA LOUISE HILLCREST"

Her signature was in the same printing, and Lindy Lou laughed at the bold upright letters. "It was clever of him, though," she admitted to herself. "And maybe I won't have any more trouble after this at all."

The search she had given the attic on the first day was nothing compared with the one she instituted now. She turned out the trunks and boxes with a reckless hand. Once her heart beat hard enough to stifle her breathing when she came upon a bundle of yellow and green bills. But they were of Confederate issue and valueless, she knew, unless some collector would want them. She found a Wedgwood teapot with a broken spout and some fine old bone china in a fair state of preservation. She marveled at the beauty of some old fabrics she found made into dresses and mantles, but of treasure she found no sign.

Convinced that there was nothing in the attic, she went to the second floor, and there she sounded every wall, tested broad pine board after board in the flooring, looked on every closet shelf and wrapped on all the ceilings with a long stick. Down, then, to the first floor. Lee had stacked the bricks from the parlor fireplace in a pile, and Lindy Lou took a long look up the chimney, only to sigh and turn away.

"I don't believe it can be in the house," she decided at last; "so now I'll have to try to follow the map outside again."

She found some fruit and bread left in the kitchen, and munching them for lunch. Then through the long, hot afternoon she toiled over the land around Twinoaks, hunting for the signs, making notes of likely places to dig. It was discouraging work, but at the end of the day Lindy Lou was as convinced as ever that some day she would stumble upon the clue—then home to New York and Anton, and living happily ever after.

Just that sure was Lindy Lou; and, while she was tired when it came time to go back to Threeforks, she was quite ready to return the next day, and the next, to go on with her explorations.

In quest of knowledge and adventure these two University of Toronto boys worked and hiked their way around the world, paying for transportation just $75 each, one full year—27 countries—30,000 miles. This is the trip the audience take with them as they follow their adventures on the screen—a year in an evening. On the screen there will be prize pictures in color: Europe, the Holy Land, the Orient. The community is urged to see and hear them.

Owing to the anniversary services at Hope next Sunday morning and evening, there will be no church service at Queensville.

Harry Martin, a Queensville boy, who last year received his B.A. degree at Queen's University, will return again this year to receive his M.A. degree. The principal at Queen's was quite interested in Harry and it is through him that he has returned for the higher degree. The community is very proud of Harry and wish him the best of success. During the summer Harry has been stationed in a church near Charbot Lake.

KESWICK
W. M. S. HEAD IS TO BE SPEAKER

Services were held as usual on Sunday. Rev. C. E. Tackler, the pastor, who has returned from his vacation, occupying the pulpit.

The regular W.M.S. meeting was held last Wednesday. Mrs. O. King, second vice-president, occupying the chair. While there were not many present, owing to the busy season, it was nevertheless a most interesting, well-planned meeting. Questions taken from the year book were handed around and replied to by the different members. Miss Joy Marritt was appointed delegate to the school of missions, and announcement was made that Mrs. Ernest Forbes of Weston, president of the Women's Missionary Society of Canada, would be the special speaker for thank-offering Sunday, which is to be on September 20. This should be a most interesting address as Rev. and Mrs. Forbes last year had a trip through various mission fields in the far east and Mrs. Forbes thus brings first hand information to all interested in this work.
